This concept focuses on a much more traditionalist approach to home with contemporary design focuses. We focus on having a large portal window facing the lane-way and the majority of the light coming in from skylights placed strategically along the top. The aesthetics for this concept derive from Japanese contemporary design roots and we bring in the same concepts into the interior. This concept turns the space inward, providing light in the space while still providing a soft, home-y space. The inclusion of so many natural materials brings in a strong connection to the natural environment, and allows for a lot of flexibility in solutions for the space. The rear concept uses wood to mirror the interior of the space and tie the structure together.

This design takes inspiration from Frank Lloyd Wright's homes as well his interest in Japanese wooden homes. We take that idea and extend it into this context. The warm tones present in this design focus on a space that combines different ideas of the home into one core concept as shelter.
